

'No One' Plans To Leave Charles City or Oelwein

CHARLES CITY (AP)—If you think anybody is moving out of Charles City and neighboring Oelwein because the two cities were wrecked by tornadoes last week, think again.

The mayors of the two communities said today they don't know of anybody who is planning to pull out of the tornado-ravaged cities 50 miles apart in northeast Iowa.

"Not a person!" exclaimed Oelwein Mayor Sam Mazzotti, when asked if anyone was planning to leave his town of 8,200.

"No I haven't heard anyone say they were going to leave," said Mayor Harry Brenton of Charles City, a city of 10,000 which the Weather Bureau said suffered the worst death toll from a tornado since 1913 in Iowa.

Twin tornadoes cut a swath through both cities and the town of Maynard, population 500, just north of Oelwein, Wednesday.

The twisters left 16 dead—13 at Charles City, two at Maynard and one at Oelwein—hundreds injured, and property damage estimated at more than $38 million.

Oelwein Mayor Mazzotti said rebuilding of the first home in his city was to start Tuesday.

He said there is "still a great deal of work to be done" but added:

"Progress is ahead of schedule with the complete cooperation of all the help that we have received here. It is unbelievable that the debris has been hauled away so quickly. Our labor supply is holding out real good. We're having wonderful cooperation from the surrounding area."

"Morale here has been real great. People have accepted this and now they're ready to go to work to rebuild."

Mayor Brenton of Charles City said a couple of tornado-wrecked businesses are reopening in quonset huts and "we're going to go."

He said he "wouldn't want to make a guess" on how long it will take to clean up so that major rebuilding can start. He said the main problem is "a place to put" the debris, which has overloaded city dumps.

Insurance adjustors and inspectors met with the City Council in Charles City Monday to try to line up plans for inspecting damage making adjustments.

Brenton said a public meeting would be held at 3 p.m. with federal officials to outline loan and other disaster relief programs available. A similar meeting is set in Oelwein at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The Charles City mayor said a delegation from Albert Lea, Minn., hit by a tornado last year, met with city officials Monday and "gave us some advice" about avoiding mistakes Albert Lea made in the tornado aftermath.

In Oelwein, Mazzotti said a route for tourists to view the tornado damage will be established Sunday. Both Oelwein and Charles City were sealed off to tourists last weekend to facilitate the work of crews clearing the wreckage.

SENATE SERENADE

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—It sounded more like the Far East than the Old West in the Arizona Senate the past two years.

Sen. Wing Ong of Phoenix, born in China, gave frequent impromptu recitals on an Oriental flute and a "Chinese bango" he had made in Hong Kong.

The serenades to gallery visitors were made during recesses.

Owen Again Will Run For Ag Post

DES MOINES (AP)—Kenneth Owen of Centerville announced today he will run for Iowa secretary of agriculture, a post he held between 1965 and 1967.

Owen charged incumbent Republican L. B. Liddy with failing to maintain an adequate meat inspection program, enacted by the 1965 legislature, and other consumer protection services.

Owen, 49, served in the Iowa House for three terms and has recently resigned as an Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service fieldman for 11 counties.

He said the state meat inspection program has deteriorated by the resignation of the former director, Dr. Russell McNellis, and "an insufficient number of inspectors." He said the program could be taken over by the federal government if it is not upgraded.

Lawyer Accuses Turner Of 'Personal Vendetta'

DES MOINES (AP)—A Des Moines lawyer says Atty. Gen. Richard Turner must be pursuing a "personal vendetta" against fees awarded him and another attorney by a federal court.

The 1967 legislature said the federal court should set the amount of fees attorneys Lex Hawkins and Verne Lawyer in a state suit against 22 oil and asphalt companies accused of price fixing in sales to Iowa and various Iowa subdivisions.

In a letter to the State Executive Council, Turner said the fees allowed were "monumental" and said the two attorneys "have won the support of 'then al' political cronies."

Gov. Harold Hughes said Turner's remarks were "discourteous" and immediately polled the council, controlled 3-2 by Republicans, on whether they had any "political alliances" with Hawkins or Lawyer.

All five council members—Democrats Hughes and State Treasurer Paul Franzenburg, and Republicans Secretary of State Melvin D. Synhorst, State Auditor Lloyd Smith and Agriculture Secretary L. B. Liddy—all denied any such affiliation.

Iowa City Sends Official To Charles City

Iowa City's chief building inspector has joined similar officers from two dozen other Iowa cities in tornado-raked Charles City to aid in recovery of that community.

Under a program sponsored through the Iowa League of Municipalities, C. Bruce Hamilton will be in Charles City today and Wednesday helping to determine which buildings are safe to occupy, and which must be demolished.

Mayor Loren L. Hickerson told councilmen at their informal Monday afternoon session that he had given his approval and that Hamilton had left before the session. The action won quick approval from councilmen.
