Tropical Storm Humberto strengthened to a Category 1 hurricane around 11 PM CDT on September 12th. Wind damage was confined to the High Island area of Galveston County and far eastern Chambers County. Humberto came ashore, just to the east of High Island, shortly after 2 AM CDT on September 13th.

Humberto is notable for its exceptional rapid intensification off the Texas coast from a tropical depression into a hurricane within 19 hours. Maximum rainfall totals from Humberto ranged from around 2 inches to over 14 inches mainly along and east of a line from Freeport to the Hitchcock-Texas City area to around Winnie.

The majority of the damage noted from Humberto was due to fresh water flooding and high wind causing minor structural damage, along with knocking down trees and power lines. There were no injuries or deaths from Humberto in the Houston-Galveston area.
