

Tornado

Quentin Minix

The tornado that took place on March 2, 2012 was a very terrible disaster that shook Magoffin County. After the tornado Magoffin County was a mess trees knocked down, houses and stores destroyed, and much more. After the tornado everyone was scared for a little while and some probably still are because no one thought one could or would happen in Magoffin.

The night of the tornado was probably the scariest I was in shock that a tornado actually happened. We didn't have electric for that whole night then the next morning it was back up again and it almost felt like a normal day until we went to town that's when we seen what the tornado had done it was terrible. No one said a word when driving through town no one could believe what happened.

It defiantly changed a lot of things like having to come to the high school because the middle school was damaged. It's still weird walking around and seeing seniors, juniors, etc. and it's going to be that way till the new high school is built but by then I'll be in high school so it wouldn't really matter anyways. Salyersville grade school was also damaged I didn't go there but it was repaired and up and running. So many trees were knocked down too its especially sad to see in the fall but when everything is bloomed it isn't that noticeable and people I know homes were destroyed its sad to think about its even worse if you know that person.

That's my experience with the tornado a very sad scary one luckily though most of town and everybody has recovered I would say as a county we are stronger than ever.
