ter," said John Sebern, Charles City junior high school teacher, former city council member and Red Cross disaster director for the county.

Sebern was one of the few who could see, even by the weekend, a bright spot in the disaster that left 18 dead, more than 600 injured and property damage estimated at nearly $40 million.

He commented that the Charles City tornado had done "a lot of what urban renewal would have done." The city council had rejected an urban renewal plan only two weeks before the twister hit.

The tornadoes pounced out of sullen clouds late Wednesday afternoon. They knocked out electric power and left a darkness over the two communities — a darkness of more kinds than one.

Smashed Dreams

The statistics can't impart the tragedy of the end of a man's hopes and dreams, smashed in five minutes.

"A guy works all his life to get a home paid for and just that quick she's gone," said Gordon Mead, of Charles City.

"All I've got is what I've got on my back," said 77-year-old H. E. Gowin, one of 30 residents of the St. Charles hotel in Charles City. They were left homeless when the tornado cut a swath through the middle of town.

Rain, Too

A malevolent driving rain and chill winds added to the darkness invading survivors' minds. National guard sentries walked in pairs along the business district, dodging piles of rubble.

Inside the headquarters, four survivors sat staring blankly ahead. "They look like refugees from a war," whispered a Red Cross nurse. A tiny terrier belonging to one of them played around their feet, becoming a favorite with the volunteers.

At 5 a.m. Thursday the black sky became grey and teams went out to assess the damage, searching for possible victims buried under collapsed buildings.

The rain continued off and on Thursday. But the silence gave way to the buzz of chain saws as crews chewed up fallen trees into manageable pieces. The darkness of the mind began to lift.

Residents began cautiously approaching homes, searching for personal belongings among the splintered boards.

Silver Teapot

In Cedar Terrace, a housing complex for the elderly, a polished silver teapot stood on a pedestal. Unmarked by the tornado, it stood higher than the roof in the general area where four persons lost their lives.

By Thursday night portable electric generators replaced the whine of saws. The four refugees continued their silent vigil, but there was light.

Friday morning the Oliver Corp. tractor factory — mainstay of Charles City, employing about 2,300 — began working on a limited scale, bringing in about 400 men. The factory and LOADED DOWN with band gear, Tim Learn left the Edgewood-Colesburg school bus at Greene Square in Cedar Rapids Saturday morning as his band prepared to march in the annual Eastern Iowa band festival. A light rain earlier in the day moved out in time for about 40 marching units to move in formation along the downtown parade route. Tim is a freshman from Colesburg.

DEATHS

L. Earl Hite

L. Earl Hite, 76, of 637 Twenty-second avenue SW, an employe of Quaker Oats Co. for 37 years before his retirement in 1956, died Friday following a long illness.

Born Oct. 5, 1891, in Oquawka, Ill., he was married to the former Abbie Mae Frazer, who preceded him in death in 1960.

Surviving are two daughters, Etta Pagel and Luella Stechcon, both of Cedar Rapids; nine grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; two brothers, Robert Hite, Keithsburg, Ill., and Guy Hite, Peoria, Ill.; and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Fullerton, Keithsburg, Ill.

Memorial services: Turner chapel west at 10:30 a.m. Monday. Burial: Linwood cemetery. Friends may call at the Turner chapel west until 10 a.m. Monday. The casket will not be opened after the service.

Robbie Scroggins

Robbie D. Scroggins, wife of James J. Scroggins, 1911 Washington avenue SE, a Cedar Rapids resident 25 years, died Friday following a long illness.

Born May 16, 1903, in Hartford, Ark., she was married to Mr. Scroggins April 3, 1919, in Clayton, Ala.

Surviving in addition to her husband is a son, Louie W. Scroggins, of Cedar Rapids; two grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. George Croftwell, Trinity, Ala.; and a brother, Clarence McCain, Cape Coral, Fla.

Memorial services: Turner chapel west at 3 p.m. Monday by the Rev. Clem Keys, of the Nazarene church, Clarinda. Friends may call at the Turner chapel west.

C.R. Man Fined for Indecent Exposure

Peter R. Aldershof of 524 Gwendolyn drive NE was fined $100 after he pled guilty in Cedar Rapids municipal court Friday on a charge of indecent exposure.

Aldershof was accused of exposing himself to a 19-year-old Cedar Rapids girl when she applied for a job at Cedar Rapids Tent and Awning Co., 529 First avenue SE, May 9.

Mistrial in Klansman's Arson Case

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — A deadlocked jury late Friday night brought a mistrial in the case of Sam Bowers, former Ku Klux Klan imperial wizard charged with arson in the firebomb death of a Negro leader.

A circuit court jury reported that it was deadlocked with 11 voting guilty and one voting innocent. Judge Stanton Hall then declared a mistrial.

The jury had been deliberating since Thursday night on the fate of Bowers, charged in the fire bombing that claimed the life of a vote registration leader, Vernon Dahmer.

Bowers remained free on bond after mistrial was declared. Dahmer died Jan. 10, 1966, several hours after firebombs destroyed his home and store.

Former Klansman Billy Roy Pitts testified that Bowers — at the time imperial wizard of the White Knights of the KKK — gave the order to attack Dahmer's home and store and kill him if possible.

Arson charges were filed against four other men. None has yet been brought to trial. Eight other men were charged with both arson and murder. One was convicted and sentenced to life, and another was tried but the case ended in mistrial.

Backs Warning Of Negro X-Ray

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government official says Ralph Nader, consumer critic, may be right in contending some technicians give stronger X-ray doses to Negroes in the belief, unsupported by evidence, that they have denser bones and harder flesh than whites.

"We have no conclusive scientific evidence to justify practice," said Dr. Raymond Moore, deputy director of the National Center for Radiological Health.

Band Festival

Iowa Band Festival. Some had no candidate. In one instance, however, there was a queen, but no band. The queen candidate, Beth Albrecht, represented the West Central school district at Maynard. As a result of the tornado at Maynard Wednesday, the band did not participate Saturday.

Thousands of spectators lined streets and sidewalks in downtown section of Cedar Rapids to witness the spectacle. As many as could took advantage of doorways to protect themselves from the chilly breeze whipping through the loop. Others were wrapped in blankets.

A side attraction appeared with the Prairie high school marching band. A little tan dog marched proudly at the head of the Prairie organization, accompanying the drum major, Linda Hartley of route two, Cedar Rapids.

Questioned about her canine company, Miss Hartley said she had no idea where it came from. Apparently it was just a stage-struck pooch, anxious to be in the public eye.

Afternoon festivities were scheduled to begin at 1:30 in Greene Square with a concert by the Major 7th, a Tijuana Brass-style combo.

The awards ceremony, presentation of trophies to the top three bands, announcement of "Outstanding Bandmaster of 1968", and crowning of the new "Miss Eastern Iowa", was scheduled for 3 p.m.

Weather forced a change in plans for both events and they were moved into the Ballroom at the Montrose hotel. The queen candidates and their bandmasters were guests at a 12:45 p.m. luncheon at the Montrose hotel. A panel of judges made their final assessment of each queen candidate during the luncheon.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — It took nine weeks, but Robert Kennedy finally has spent a day on the presidential campaign trail without screaming crowds milling about him.

Since he announced his candidacy March 16, a well-oiled campaign machine has produced adoring crowds in half the U.S.

But Friday, as he campaigned for the May 28 Oregon primary, he rode through two dozen blocks of downtown Portland in an open car — and the sidewalks were empty. No signs announced that he would "pass this point at 4 p.m."

When he did draw a crowd, it was several hundred elementary school children far below voting age. Or it was a mock Democratic convention at a high school that would have drawn a crowd because of its own local popularity.

Long Faces

But neither Kennedy nor the temperament of Oregonians could be fully blamed. His schedule took him where there were few people, and the faces of his staff were long as they regrouped at a downtown hotel after the lethargic day. Kennedy, who appeared withdrawn, met with his local planners at a closed meeting at dinner time.

Many expect changes to be made in his Oregon organization, possibly before he returns to the state Tuesday, and for the group to pull out all stops in the next 10 days.

Kennedy delivered an economic address before the Portland City club and was received correctly but coolly. A week ago, Eugene McCarthy drew encouraging applause from the same predominantly Republican audience.

Sparse Applause

Kennedy visited the administrative office of a construction equipment plant, caught a few hundred employees on their coffee break in the cafeteria, and won sparse applause.

Police Officer On Motorcycle Hurt in Crash

A Cedar Rapids police officer suffered minor injuries when his two-wheel police motorcycle and car collided at Second avenue and Sixth street SE, Saturday morning.

Officer Paul D. Hess, jr., 24, of 5425 Cedar Drive NW, was X-rayed at Mercy hospital for possible leg injuries and released following the accident.

Officers said Hess was traveling west on Second avenue SE and at the intersection of Sixth street, a vehicle operated by Kenneth L. Mercer, 47, of 5125 Richmar lane NW, failed to yield the right of way at a stop intersection and the two vehicles collided.

Mercer was charged with failure to yield the right of way at a stop intersection. Authorities said there was $50 and $60 damage to the motorcycle and very minor damage to the car.

CD of A Holding 26th Convention At Town House

The 28th Biennial Convention of the Iowa State Court Catholic Daughters of America began Friday at the Town House Convention Hall in Cedar Rapids.

The theme for the convention is "Christian Unity". Friday morning opened with registration followed by an afternoon workshop.

Presiding at the afternoon workshop was Anna M. Baxter, National Vice Regent, on a topic of "Sevenfold Program of Involvement."

The workshop continued Friday evening with a panel on the "Faith in the Changing Church" moderated by the Rev. Edgar Kurt of Mt. Mercy college.

plause with his standard campaign speech. He re-enacted the quiet scene a few minutes later at the same company's production plant.

All this came on top of news that an NBC poll showed him leading McCarthy by the slim margin of 29-27 percent in Oregon — with the combined forces of President Johnson and Hubert Humphrey registering 25 percent.

The poll was made May 11.

Saturday, the opening session of the convention, was presided over by Jesse Maley, State Regent. The morning session included seating of delegates and announcement of committees.

The convention business session was held in the afternoon. It was preceded by a luncheon in which Convention Vice-chairman Elizabeth Dearborn presided. Musical entertainment was provided by the Regis high school.

A concelebrated mass will be held Sunday at 10 a.m. at All Saints church. A Sunday noon banquet will top off the three day convention.

The Very Reverend Raymond J. Conley, State Chaplain, will preside at the banquet which will include greetings from Cedar Rapids Mayor Frank Bosh.

Fixing Bicycle, Youth Injured by Hit, Run Driver

David Barrett, 13, of 2224 Twenty-ninth avenue SW, was in satisfactory condition Saturday at Mercy hospital with a ruptured spleen, lacerated forehead, concussion and two broken ribs.

Police said young Barrett was the victim of a hit and run accident at 10:35 p.m. Friday 700 feet south of the Sixth street SW viaduct.

Investigating officers said the youth had been at the races at Hawkeye Downs and was riding his bicycle home when its chain slipped off.

Barrett reportedly stopped and was repairing the chain when he was struck by a car. The boy flagged down another car which took him to Mercy hospital.

Columbia

Two weeks ago. It was instigated by the same student group.

"Tonight's illegal act started on the campus itself, with the same student leaders whipping up the students and outsiders."

One of the students taken into a police van in the raid was Mark Rudd, chairman of the Students for a Democratic Society which spearheaded the earlier protests at the university.

Police in the raid were led by Chief Inspector Sanford Garelik, who repeatedly told his men, "Let's keep calm fellows." They first took over the block, asking people to clear the street and sidewalk.

"Invited Guests"

Everyone complied, although there was some chanting and shouting. Police wore helmets but carried no nightsticks.

One policeman announced on a bullhorn that the university had requested all "except tenants and their invited guests" to leave. The students laughed and began singing. "We shall not be moved."

The policeman then said the students were under arrest and they rose and walked to the vans. One girl went limp and was carried by three officers.
