said, "There's no question that administration officially caved in on securities maturing in nine years. Tight conditions have become. $4 billion in cuts, the ante would have to be raised. Duesenberry, a member of the budget committee, has endorsed the compromise package.

"They have a married daughter and a surcharge requested by the President. $6 billion in cuts — which the negotiators have already agreed to — is still firmly committed to no higher taxes if that's the best the Administration is willing to offer.
