Dear Abby,

While in New York City the other evening, I answered the telephone. My husband was in the kitchen. He came in, saw me, and went back to the kitchen. I called him again, and he came back. I asked him to come back into the living room and he said he couldn't because my husband was in the kitchen. He said he couldn't because my husband was in the kitchen.

What do you think he's doing? What do you think he's doing? What do you think he's doing?

Best wishes,

L. A. Warren

---

Dear Abby,

I have a problem with my knee. When I walk, my knee cracks. It makes me feel uncomfortable. What do you think I should do about it?

Yours truly,

Now toy husband can't face her. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing.

---

Dear Abby,

What do you think of people who just walk into my house without knocking? They don't think it's polite, but I think it's rude. What do you think?

Best wishes,

Mrs. Johnson

---

Dear Abby,

I have a problem with my knee. When I walk, my knee cracks. It makes me feel uncomfortable. What do you think I should do about it?

Yours truly,

Now toy husband can't face her. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing.

---

Dear Abby,

I have a problem with my knee. When I walk, my knee cracks. It makes me feel uncomfortable. What do you think I should do about it?

Yours truly,

Now toy husband can't face her. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing.

---

Dear Abby,

I have a problem with my knee. When I walk, my knee cracks. It makes me feel uncomfortable. What do you think I should do about it?

Yours truly,

Now toy husband can't face her. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing. She's so embarrasing.