

Accumulating Snow Returns Sat Evening & Sunday

Winter Weather Advisory – 6pm Saturday to 6pm Sunday

Message of the Day:

- ✓ Accumulating snowfall returns to the area late Saturday afternoon and through Sunday.
- ✓ Moderate to heavy snowfall, widespread 4" to 8"+ possible.
- ✓ Light winds and long duration snowfall will likely help mitigate major issues, but travel will still be hazardous at times.

Important Forecast Changes

- ✓ This is the first Situation Report issued for this event. An update will be issued Saturday.

Accumulating Snow Saturday Evening into Sunday

Key Points

Hazards: Moderate to heavy snowfall accumulations, including potentially widespread 4" to 8", with locally higher amounts possible. Snowfall will occur over a 24+ hour period.

Areas Impacted: Most of Iowa. Large areas of central and northern Iowa stand to see the greatest snowfall amounts.

Timing & Duration: Snow will begin to work into far western Iowa around 3pm Saturday and quickly spread across the state through the remainder of the afternoon and evening. Snow will begin to exit from west to east Sunday evening.

Impacts: Snow covered roads and slick travel will be the primary impacts. While primary roads will be affected, secondary and rural roads will likely see the greatest impact due to limited plowing and other treatments during the event. Light winds and snowfall occurring over 24+ hour period will likely help mitigate major issues.

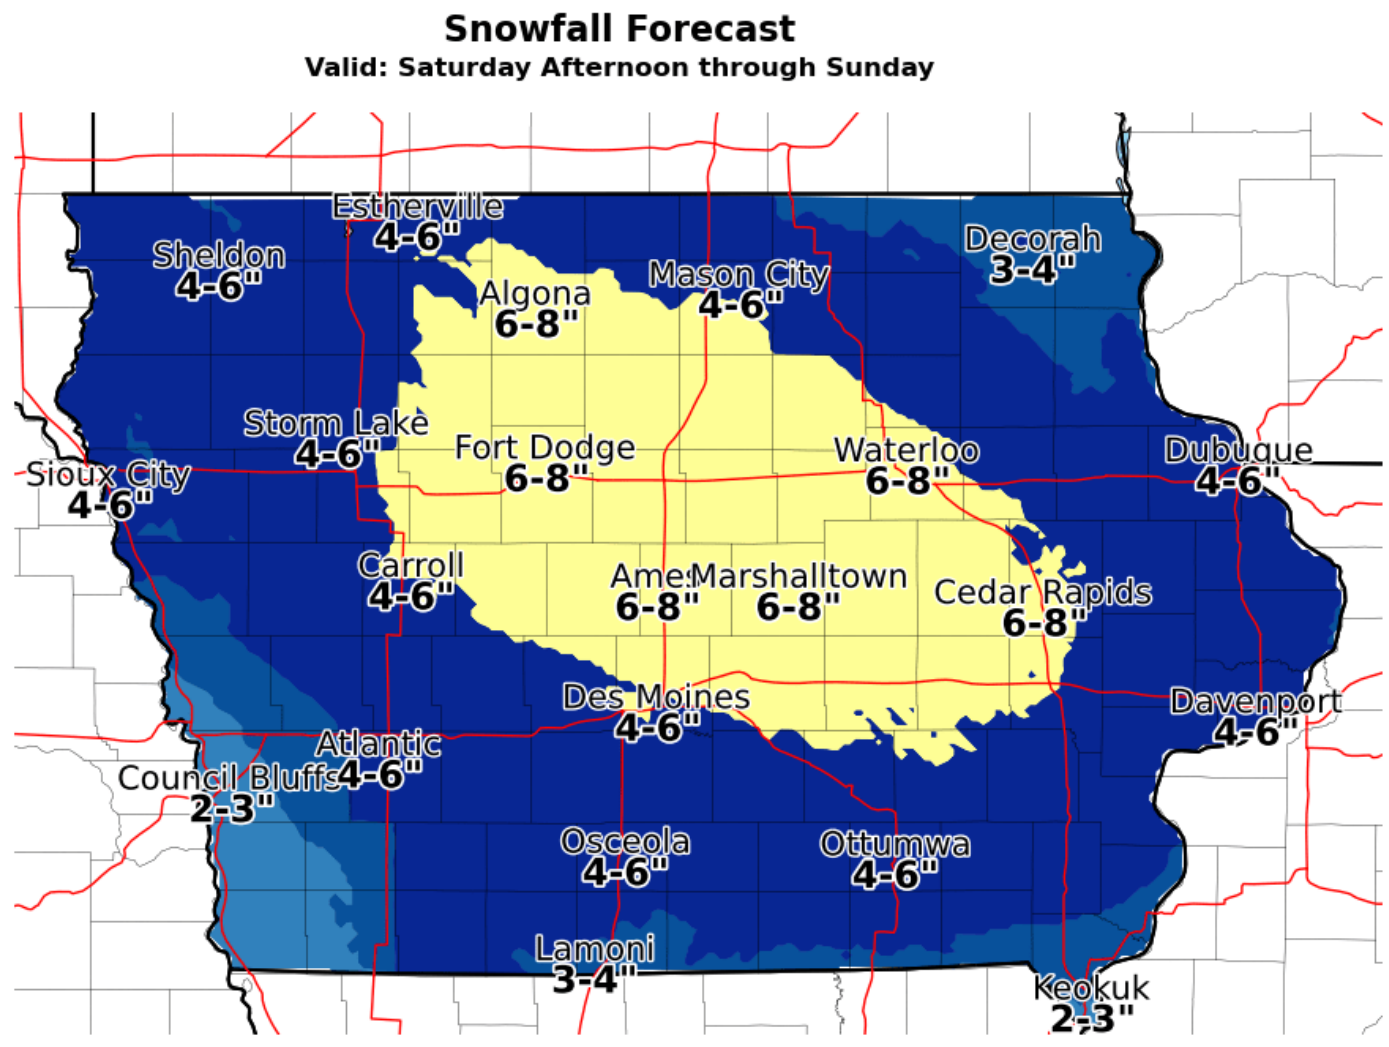

Certainty & Considerations: Forecast confidence high for widespread multiple inches of snowfall to affect the state Saturday evening through Sunday.
