One home had over 8 feet of standing water in its basement. The water in the basement was from overland flow that broke out a basement window and filled the recently finished basement. Minor flooding also occurred along the Rogue River near Rockford, Michigan, on May 31st. River flood advisories (river forecast to exceed bankfull but not flood stage) were issued for 15 river forecast points during the month of May. At 4:10 AM EDT, Monday, May 10th, the hydrology section of the Area Forecast Discussion mentioned the following: "Area rivers and streams remain at or slightly above normal levels as of early this morning. The southeast corner of the area is where the above normal levels are due to the heavier rains late last week. River levels are most certain to increase significantly over the next week across the entire area. Rainfall amounts of 1 to 2 inches look very likely across most areas from late tonight into Tuesday night. Then another 1 to 2 inches is very possible from Wednesday night through Thursday night across most of the area. If all of this rainfall comes to fruition...we will be looking at many river flood advisories and even some river flood warnings will be possible. This will continue to be monitored."
