Full-force Fran aims for coast
Evacuations ordered in N.C., S.C. beach communities

Hurricane Fran

The fast-moving Hurricane Fran was expected to make landfall on the coast of North Carolina late Monday and early Tuesday. The storm was expected to bring heavy rain, strong winds, and flooding to the region.

Evacuation Routes

Residents in coastal areas were urged to evacuate to higher ground or inland areas.

Area Cancellations

Some events and activities were canceled or postponed as a result of the hurricane.

One Hour Glasses

The one-hour glasses were designed to promote social distancing and prevent the spread of the COVID-19 virus. The glasses featured a one-hour timer on the side to encourage users to limit their time in a public setting.
