Subject: Amended: Additions and Changes to the NAM and RAP BUFR Soundings:
Effective February 25, 2014

This notice is amended to reschedule this implementation from January 2014 to February 25, 2014. As previously noted, changes to the NAM Binary Universal Form for the Representation of meteorological data (BUFR) soundings will not be made until the NAM model upgrade later in 2014.

Effective on or about Tuesday, February 25, 2014, beginning with the 1200 Coordinated Universal Time (UTC) model distribution, the National Centers for Environmental Prediction (NCEP) will modify the list of stations for which BUFR data are generated for the Rapid Refresh (RAP) model.

The new stations are listed in Table 1, and the stations being changed are listed in Table 2. No stations are being removed. This set of changes will correspond with the implementation of version 2 of the RAP, currently scheduled for the same time.

The previously advertised plans to make the same station additions to the North American Mesoscale system (NAM) will be postponed until the planned NAM upgrade in the spring of 2014. The changes to that list (and to the NAM BUFR station collectives) will be detailed in the Technical Implementation Notice (TIN) on the forthcoming NAM implementation.

The Short-Range Ensemble Forecast system (SREF) station list will be updated in early 2014. The changes to that list will be detailed in an upcoming SREF TIN.

Table 2. Changes to Existing Sites Being Made to the RAP BUFR List. The numerical and character identifications are provided:

-Station 000037 (near Carroll, IA) is moved from 42.00 N, 95.00 W to 42.04 N, 94.79 W and will now be known as Carroll, IA. This puts the BUFR point at the local airport instead of the current rural location.
