

Light Snow and Ice Potential Tonight into Tuesday

OVERVIEW

- An area of low pressure tracks along the East Coast through Tuesday, bringing a light snowfall and potential for a glaze of ice to the region.

HAZARDS & IMPACTS

NYC/NJ metro, Long Island, coastal and SW CT – Snow to Rain/Freezing Drizzle

Light snow develops this evening, continuing overnight before potentially tapering as freezing drizzle or light rain mid to late Tuesday morning.

Total Snowfall: 1 to 3 inches. This may result in hazardous/difficult travel for the Tuesday AM commute.

- Snowfall Rates: Up to 0.5 inch/hour
- Snowfall Character: Initially powdery, becoming wet and heavy
- Temperatures: Upper 20s tonight, rising into the mid 30s Tuesday PM.

Ice Accretion: Glaze of ice accretion possible Tuesday morning on untreated and elevated surfaces.

Interior NE NJ, Lower Hudson Valley, interior SE CT – Snow

Light snow develops this evening, falling into Tuesday afternoon.

Total Snowfall: 2 to 3 inches. This may result in hazardous/difficult travel for the Tuesday AM commute.

- Snowfall Rates: Up to 0.5 inch/hour
- Snowfall Character: Dry and powdery
- Temperatures: Low to mid 20s tonight, rising to near 30 Tuesday PM.

NWS ALERTS

Winter Weather Advisory :

- 8 PM This Evening to 1 PM Tuesday: All of NYC, Nassau NY, Essex NJ, Hudson NJ, Union NJ
- 10 PM This Evening to 7 PM Tuesday: Bergen NJ, Passaic NJ, Westchester NY, Rockland NY, Orange NY, Putnam NY, Fairfield CT, northern New Haven CT, northern Middlesex CT

NEXT BRIEF

- By 6 PM This Evening.

Winter Watches Warnings and Advisories

■ Winter Weather Advisory

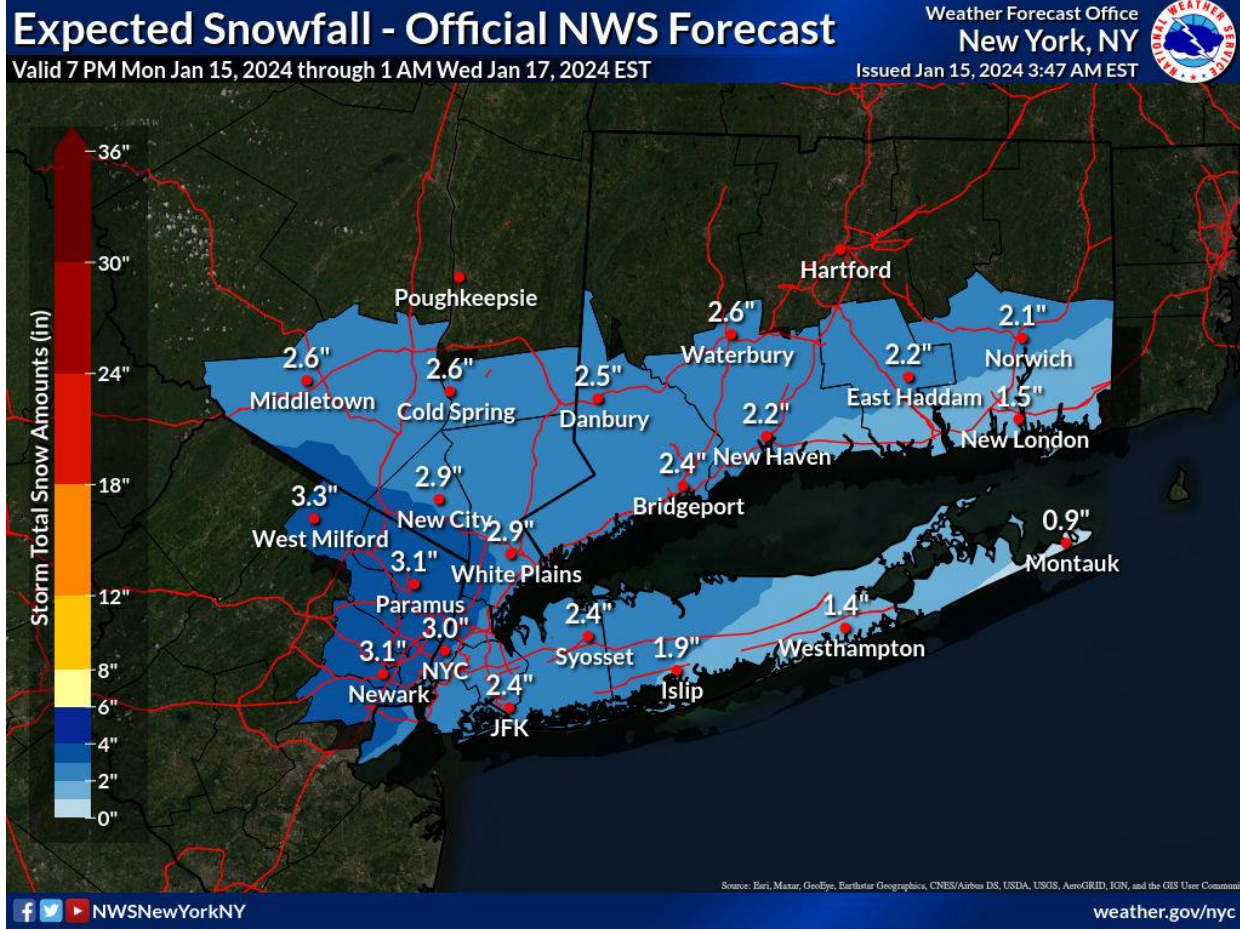

Graphic Created
January 15th, 2024
3:13 AM CST

Most Likely Snowfall Accumulation – Official Forecast

New York, NY
WEATHER FORECAST OFFICE

ISSUED: 1/15/2024 5:37 AM

www.weather.gov/nyc

Most Likely Ice Accretion – Official Forecast

New York, NY
WEATHER FORECAST OFFICE

