

National Weather Service Tallahassee, Florida

Rainfall Amounts/Strong Storms

2-4 inches of rain fell across the FL Panhandle coast through 2PM today. Additional rainfall will be limited to around 1 inch or less through tonight, with isolated higher amounts. The threat of nuisance flooding will continue for the coastal Florida Panhandle, but will lessen after sunset.

The threat for strong storms (gusty winds) this evening remains low and mainly expect any strong storms to remain over the water. A few strong storms (gusty winds) are possible inland tomorrow, mainly across southeast AL, but this threat is on the low side too.

weather.gov/tallahassee

Social Media:
NWSTallahassee

04/05/2019
4:00 PM EDT