

NOAA Record Book Rebinding

The federal weather service has been a part of the Tampa Bay area since 1890. The Tampa Bay Area National Weather Service office has two leather bound U.S. Weather Bureau means books dating back to the weather service's inception. These hand-scribed books were part of the recent Treasures of NOAA's Ark tour in St Petersburg, FL. Unfortunately; time took a toll on these books. The historical weather record books were recently rebound through a NOAA and the Preserve America Initiative grant (<http://preserveamerica.noaa.gov>).
